

Patrick's Day in New York City. I know that my distinguished colleagues will join me in extending our appreciation and gratitude to all of the brave members of the armed forces serving in the National Guard and the Reserve, who are so courageously and selflessly dedicated to their fellow Americans.

The National Guard is an integral part of a great American military tradition that began during the American Revolution. At that time, our Founding Fathers placed the country's security in the hands of citizen-soldiers who trained and organized into militias in their home colonies. To this day, members of the National Guard must be ready to serve their state and their country, often at a moment's notice.

Headquartered in the historic Armory on Lexington Avenue—one of a dwindling number of armories remaining in our nation's greatest city—the members of the 1st Battalion, 69th Infantry continue to uphold a distinguished tradition in both battle and disaster response. As part of the famous Irish Brigade during the Civil War, the members of the 69th Infantry were renowned for their tenacity on the battlefield, leading Confederate General Robert E. Lee to bestow upon them the nickname of "The Fighting 69th." In acknowledgment of its proud heritage, the Fighting 69th participates each year in New York's world-renowned St. Patrick's Day Parade.

The Fighting 69th are infantry soldiers—the "boots on the ground"—whose mission is to engage and destroy enemy forces in close combat. In addition to the Civil War, its members have also fought in the Spanish-American War, World War I and World War II, when its soldiers served valiantly in the battles of Makin, Saipan and Okinawa. Its members completed a tour of duty in Iraq, returning to the U.S. after serving with distinction. The battalion mobilized more than 300 soldiers to support Task Force Phoenix VII during its deployment to Afghanistan in 2008 and 2009, when four of its members paid the ultimate sacrifice for their country and were killed in action.

During the current conflict in Iraq, 19 members of the Fighting 69th were killed in action, including a member who was one of the New York firefighters who first raised the American flag above Ground Zero, Christian Engledrum. Six members of the 69th Regiment were awarded Purple Hearts in April, 2006 after being wounded by roadside bombs in Iraq. The unit patrolled the infamous road to the Baghdad airport and was stationed primarily in the Sunni Triangle, where many insurgent attacks have taken place.

The members of the Regiment also have mobilized during times of emergency in their home state of New York. The Fighting 69th was the first National Guard unit to arrive on the scene following the devastating terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. In the hours after the attacks, the Battalion assisted medical teams treating the wounded and provided significant assistance to rescue and recovery operations, continuing in this mission for nearly a year. For several months following the attacks, the members of the Fighting 69th guarded the bridges and tunnels that ring New York City.

Madam Speaker, in recognition of its tremendous contributions to civic and public life, I request that my colleagues join me in paying tribute to the Fighting 69th Regiment of the

New York State National Guard, whose members are great New Yorkers and great Americans. All patriots should be grateful for the dedication demonstrated every day by the men and women of the Fighting 69th as well as all of the brave individuals serving in National Guard and Reserve units throughout our great country. The Fighting 69th Regiment's service to our country inspires us all.

He then served this position at Knox County from 1978–2001 and Champaign County for two years before becoming President of YMCA Youth and Government.

HONORING RODOLFO SANTAYANA

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 18, 2009

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the extraordinary life and work of Rodolfo Santayana, a Cuban refugee turned entrepreneurial pioneer who recently had the intersection of SW 8th St. and SW 122nd Ave. in Miami named in his honor.

Mr. Santayana arrived in the United States after fleeing the despotic Castro regime of his beloved Cuba. He was only seventeen, but managed to help provide for his family by holding two jobs as a paperboy and a gas station attendant.

However, it would not take him long to discover his calling in the family business. His father, Rodolfo Santayana, Sr. sold jewelry door-to-door in Cuba and beseeched Rodolfo Jr. to seek out his old customers in Cuba who also found refuge from the tyranny of Castro in South Florida.

After studying jewelry design at Miami's Lindsey Hopkins Technical Education Center, he took on his father's request, opening his own store on the street that now bears his name.

He was highly regarded in South Florida not only for the beauty of his work but also for his ability to honor the Cuban heritage with his jewelry. He incorporated some of the symbols of his lost, but far from forgotten, Cuba: palm trees, ox pulled carts full of sugar cane and Cuban silver coins.

It is a testament to the greatness of our country that a man driven from his home to America with only a suitcase full of hopes could use his talent and drive to forge a remarkable life for himself. Now, he is remembered as one of Miami's most prominent businessman and jewelry artisans, even after his death.

May he be remembered, not only on his street in Miami, but by the entire nation for his beautiful portrayals of a free Cuba.

IN HONOR OF JIM WINESTOCK

HON. SANFORD D. BISHOP, JR.

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 18, 2009

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Jim Winestock, an outstanding Atlanta, GA, citizen who in February retired from a 40-year career with the United Parcel Service (UPS). In his most recent role as the Senior Vice President of U.S. Operations, Mr. Winestock was responsible for all package operations in the United States, including the pick up and delivery of more than 15.8 million packages each day. Mr. Winestock leaves a tremendous legacy of leadership, not only within the UPS organization, but in the business world in general.

A Greenville, SC, native, Mr. Winestock joined UPS in 1969 as a part-time package loader while attending Massey College in Jacksonville, FL. After graduation, he was promoted into management and worked in a broad range of jobs with increasing responsibility across Florida and Georgia. In 1992, he was promoted to vice president and Chief Operating Officer of the Northeast Texas District, then in 1996 he assumed responsibility for the Missouri District. Mr. Winestock was promoted again in 1998 to president of the Midwest Region, then became president of the North Central Region in 2000. In 2004, he was named Senior Vice President of U.S. Operations, the position he would hold for the duration of his UPS career.
